Welcome to our drop-in session on plans for a new Young Oncology Unit at The Christie Hospital, on Palatine Road. This will be provided as a joint project between ourselves and the Teenage Cancer Trust. We are developing our Young Oncology Unit into the premier centre in the UK for teenager and young adults with cancer. It will be a national lead for clinical service, education and research – and "an international beacon of excellence".

The existing, small Young Oncology Unit on Oak Road no longer meets current clinical needs. The new unit will provide these facilities in a landmark modern facility. This will integrate into our wider development plans for the Christie site, providing upgraded clinical space that meets modern requirements, and allows other parts of the hospital site to be developed to meet new demands. These proposals will significantly help us to provide improved cancer treatment and save more young lives.

The location for this development is the cleared site at 41 Palatine Road, next to the hospital facility, Palatine House. The building is being designed to sit sensitively alongside existing buildings whilst also providing a new landmark facility of high design quality. It will be a stand-alone building, which will be linked to, and accessed from the main hospital corridor. The new unit will not require any new car parking or direct vehicle access.

We are currently developing the proposals for this new Young Oncology Unit and as a valued neighbour we want to give you the opportunity to provide us with your views about our latest plans.
Please have a look at the plans, talk to the representatives from the Trust and the architects: Taylor Young, and use the feedback forms to let us know your comments. Thank-you
