The multi-disciplinary team (MDT)

Following your cancer diagnosis, the doctors looking after you have referred you to The Christie for consideration of further treatment.

It is our job to consider all the relevant information and after discussion with you to recommend a plan of action for treatment.

The team

A team of specialist doctors and nurses make up the team.

The core MDT members are:

The consultant urologist (surgeon)

This is a surgeon who specialises in carrying out operations to remove cancer, or to help treat its effects, from the urinary tract (the prostate, bladder, kidneys, testicles and penis).

The urology nurse specialist

This is a nurse who is an expert in caring for and supporting people with urological cancers. The urology nurse specialist can also help you by providing information and support especially around the time of treatment and for aftercare following treatment.

The radiologist

This is a doctor who is an expert at looking at X-rays and special scans such as CT, MRI, bone and ultrasound scans. These scans enable the team to make a diagnosis and recommend the best treatment for your case.

The histopathologist

This is a doctor who is an expert in looking at cancer cells under a microscope to determine the exact diagnosis and to work out how the cells in your cancer might behave in the future.

The oncologist

This is a doctor based at The Christie who is an expert in considering whether drugs (chemotherapy etc) or radiotherapy will be the best way of treating your type of cancer.

All these specialists work together to recommend the best options for the treatment of your cancer.

Patient-centred care

It is important that we know your views on what treatment(s) would be acceptable to you and therefore we will discuss these options with you when you come for your appointment.

The purpose of the multi-disciplinary team meeting is to allow the group of specialists to review all the information such as biopsy results, scans etc and to consider your opinion and your general health before arriving at a conclusion.

This recommendation will take into account:

- all appropriate treatment options that are available to you
- the suitability of any clinical trials that might be available to you.

The team meets on a weekly basis to ensure that cases can be discussed without delay.

When a decision has been made about your treatment, we will inform your GP straight away.

Any questions

If you have further questions, or you are worried about or don't understand something you have heard, your key worker (the urology specialist nurse), will be able to help. You can give them a call on the telephone number you have been given.
